

CHROME BROWSER

Change your notification settings

By default, [REDACTED] whenever [REDACTED] try to send you notifications.

You can change your settings if you [REDACTED].

1. On your computer, [REDACTED].
2. At the top [REDACTED] : > Settings.
3. Click [REDACTED] > Site Settings > [REDACTED]
4. [REDACTED] that you want as [REDACTED].

- Block a site:

1. Next to "[REDACTED]" click Add.
2. Enter [REDACTED].
3. Click Add.

- [REDACTED]

1. Next to "Allowed to send notifications," [REDACTED].
2. Enter the [REDACTED].
3. Click Add.

- [REDACTED] prompts:

1. Allow sites to [REDACTED]
2. Click Use [REDACTED].
  - This [REDACTED] from interrupting you. A website can still ask you to allow notifications, [REDACTED]. Instead, you will only find a [REDACTED] You can [REDACTED] access.

You can also [REDACTED] you notifications.

Save your [REDACTED]

If you sync your Chrome settings to your Google Account, you'll [REDACTED] into your [REDACTED] and open Chrome browser.

[REDACTED]

To sign in to Chrome and turn on sync, you must have a Google Account.

[REDACTED] Only turn on Chrome sync [REDACTED]. If you use a [REDACTED] mode instead.

1. On your computer, open Chrome.
2. At the [REDACTED] [REDACTED].

CHROME BROWSER

3. Click

- If you're not signed into your Google Account, you'll .

4. Click .

Tip: If you want to sync more than one account or share your computer with others, learn how to add a profile in Chrome.

