One day, the farmer's grandfather came and live with them. He was very old and weak, so the farmer just asked to take the coins out of the box. After some days, the grandfather was so tired. He wanted to take a rest but the farmer got angry with him.

" You are so lazy! You should work harder," the farmer yelled at his grandfather.

The old man did not say anything. He continued working. Suddenly he fell into the box and died. At once, all the money in the box disappeared and the box was filled with dead grandfathers. Hearing the Batara Guru's commandment, Naga god was very anxious because he didn't have arms or legs. He might not be able do the job. So he asked advice from Batara Narada who was the younger brother of Batara Guru. Unfortunately Narada was also confused. The Naga god became very upset. While the Naga god was crying for his bad luck, three teardrops fell on the ground. Not long after that, those teardrops became three beautiful shining eggs which looked like jewels. Then Batara Narada advised him to offer those shining eggs to Batara Guru.

Being attacked, one egg fell to earth. Then Naga god was hiding in the bushes but the bird was waiting for him. The bird attacked for the second time and one egg fell again. So Naga god only had one egg in his mouth. He kept moving to Batara Guru's palace. Finally Naga god arrived at the palace. He offered the egg to the Batara Guru. And miraculously the egg hatched became a very beautiful baby girl. Naga god gave the baby girl to the Batara Guru. The baby grew up into a beautiful girl and later known for Dewi Sri.

Once upon a time, Batara Guru commanded all the gods and goddesses to contribute their power in order to build a new palace. Anybody who disobeyed this commandment were considered lazy and would lose their arms and legs.

With the three eggs in his mouth, the Naga god went to the Batara Guru's palace. On the way, an eagle asked him a question. Surely Naga god could not answer the question because he was holding the eggs in his mouth. Seeing that, the bird thought that Naga god was arrogant and the bird attacked him.
