

52 Present perfect with just, already, yet

1 just

We use just with the present perfect to talk about things that happened a short time ago:
The plane has just landed. (a few minutes ago)
The play has just started – you can't go in now.

We put just before the past participle:

- ✗ The match ~~has finished just~~.
- ✗ The match ~~just has finished~~.
- ✓ The match has just finished.

2 already, yet

We can use already and yet with the present perfect.

- Already means 'before now'. We use it in positive sentences when something happens before you expect it:

You've missed the match. It's already finished.

We usually put already before the past participle:

Graham's train has already arrived.

You don't need to wash the dishes. I've already done them.

- Yet means 'by now'. We use it in questions to ask about something we are expecting to happen:

Has the six o'clock train arrived yet? It's five past six and I haven't seen it.*

We also use yet in negative sentences when we expected something to happen before now:

Our burgers haven't come yet. We ordered them nearly half an hour ago!

We usually put yet at the end of a question or negative statement:

Has the match finished yet?

I haven't read this book yet.

We don't use yet in positive sentences or already in negative sentences:

- ✗ I've ~~paid for the meal yet~~. ✓ I've already paid for the meal.
- ✗ The parcel ~~hasn't arrived already~~. ✓ The parcel hasn't arrived yet.
