

Private Interactive English Teaching Service

Level : Intermediate      Name: _____
Topic: Lunch break in the hospital cafeteria

Date: _____

Scene: Lunch break in the hospital cafeteria. Dahiana, an aesthetician with a radiant smile and flowing hair, sits across from Marielys, a vascular surgeon with sharp eyes and a confident aura. Between bites of their salads, they exchange stories.

Dahiana: So, Dr. Marielys, tell me about your day. Any vascular mysteries solved today?

Marielys: (Chuckles) Mystery is a strong word, Dahiana. But yes, I had a fascinating case. An elderly woman with a persistent leg ulcer that wouldn't heal. Turns out, it was a hidden varicose vein causing the whole mess. Angioplasty did the trick, and she's already showing improvement. It's always rewarding seeing the relief on their faces.

Dahiana: I know that feeling. Today, I had a client who was self-conscious about her acne scars. We did a microdermabrasion session, and her skin looked so much smoother afterwards. It's amazing how a little boost can change someone's confidence.

Marielys: Absolutely. We both deal in different currencies, Dahiana – you in confidence, me in health. But the satisfaction of seeing someone feel better about themselves, that's universal.

Dahiana: Speaking of currencies, I can't believe the state of some of the skin I see. Late nights, stress, bad habits – it all shows up on the surface.

Marielys: I see the other side of the coin, Dahiana. Clogged arteries, weakened veins, the hidden damage our bodies take. It's a constant reminder to take care of ourselves.

Dahiana: Preach! I try to educate my clients about proper skincare, sunscreen, healthy habits. It's not just about vanity, it's about preventive care.

Marielys: Exactly. My patients often come to me when things have gotten bad, but you're right, prevention is key. Early detection of vascular issues can prevent major complications down the line.

Dahiana: Maybe we should collaborate, Dr. Marielys. I could offer facials with a side of "vascular awareness tips"!

Marielys: (Laughs) I love it! We could call it "Veins & Vitality."

Dahiana: Perfect! And who knows, maybe your patients will get some skincare advice while they're waiting for their appointments.

Marielys: Now you're talking, Dahiana. Together, we can conquer the world, one vein and one blemish at a time!

Dahiana: (Raises her salad fork in a toast) To health, beauty, and a little collaboration!

Marielys: Cheers to that!

Read the questions. Choose the correct answer according to the dialogue.

1. What was the main theme of Dahiana's client's visit?
  - a) Anti-aging treatment
  - b) Acne scar reduction
  - c) Relaxation and stress relief
  - d) Cosmetic surgery consultation
2. Which hidden condition did Marielys diagnose and treat?
  - a) Aneurysm
  - b) Varicose veins
  - c) Blood clot
  - d) Arterial stenosis
3. What common ground did Dahiana and Marielys find in their work?
  - a) Artistic expression
  - b) Financial success
  - c) Patient satisfaction
  - d) Technological innovation
4. How did Dahiana suggest combining their professions?
  - a) Offering combo appointments
  - b) Writing a joint book
  - c) Co-creating a skincare line
  - d) Launching a "Veins & Vitality" campaign
5. What was the tone of their conversation?
  - a) Competitive and argumentative
  - b) Collaborative and inspiring
  - c) Formal and professional
  - d) Humorous and lighthearted

6. Which statement best describes Marielys' approach to patient care?
- a) Focus on quick fixes and immediate results
  - b) Prioritize prevention and long-term health (correct)
  - c) Emphasize aesthetics and outward appearance
  - d) Rely solely on medication and surgery
7. What does Dahiana's advice about skincare highlight?
- a) The importance of expensive products
  - b) The link between skin health and overall wellness
  - c) The effectiveness of aggressive treatments
  - d) The need for constant touch-ups and procedures
8. What surprised Dahiana about the state of some of her clients' skin?
- a) The prevalence of genetic conditions
  - b) The lack of knowledge about skincare basics
  - c) The increasing demand for invasive procedures
  - d) The negative impact of social media
9. What potential benefit did Marielys see in Dahiana's clients?
- a) Increased willingness for surgery
  - b) A platform for promoting vascular awareness
  - c) More revenue for the hospital
  - d) Reduced workload for surgeons
10. Which phrase best captures the overall message of the conversation?
- a) "Beauty is only skin deep."
  - b) "Prevention is better than cure."
  - c) "Health and beauty are mutually exclusive."
  - d) "Appearance is everything."