

Student B

In 1991, the viola player Rosemary Nalden _____¹ (listen) to a news programme on the radio when she _____² (hear) some classical music. The report was about a music school in Soweto, South Africa, and a group of string players who _____³ (find) it hard to continue playing because they _____⁴ (not have) enough money. Before she _____⁵ (hear) this programme, Rosemary _____⁶ (not realize) that there was a classical music school there.

Rosemary then decided to raise some money for the school. She contacted a group of 120 musician friends who she _____⁷ (play) with before in different orchestras. They went to 16 railway stations, played their music, and at the same time _____⁸ (collect) money from the passengers. People were surprised when they realized that the people who _____⁹ (play) at the stations were all professional musicians: nothing like that _____¹⁰ (happen) before. Then, in 1992, Rosemary _____¹¹ (travel) to South Africa and took the money they _____¹² (collect) to the school herself.

