Trash is a phenomenon that we often encounter in the community. Trash is stuff that can't be used anymore, and its existence is very annoying. Trash also has a bad impact on our health and our environment.

Trash at first looks normal scattered around us, but it will be caused many bad impacts if it is ignored continuously by the people. Trash can harm our health. The rubbish that is piled up will bring smells that contaminate the air and there would be a lot of flies coming. Then, pile-up trash will also invite other unwanted organisms to come which subsequently bring diseases, such as diarrhea and dengue.

Besides bringing disease, trash can also bring disasters such as floods. Trash that is dumped into the river by the residents continuously will make the water on the river can not flow, and over time the water will overflow with heavy rains that continue to flush. If flood occurs, it will make people can not do their activities like usual. In addition, in areas where the land is slope it can caused landslides.

Lots of negative impacts caused by trash, for that reason we must keep our environment clean from the trash. We can start by doing a small thing such as throw trash in its place
