

NAME: _____

CLASS: _____

Lucky lived on a farm in Tennessee. His friends called him Lucky because he was the unluckiest kid they knew. Nothing ever went his way, and, in the beginning, this day was no different. Lucky heard loud noises coming from the barn. If he hadn't heard those noises, he wouldn't have gone on the scariest adventure of his life.

Lucky got to the barn just in time to see a teenager riding away on his horse, Buck. Not only was the teenager stealing the horse, but he also had a chicken under his arm! Lucky quickly got on Gracie, one of the fastest horses on the farm. If the teenager had stolen Gracie, he would have gotten away. Fortunately, he stole Buck, who did not like to run very fast.

Gracie quickly caught up with Buck, and Lucky yelled, "Stop! That's my horse . . . and my chicken!" The teenager realized he would not escape on the horse, so he got down and threw the chicken toward Lucky. If the chicken hadn't scared Gracie, Lucky wouldn't have fallen off of her. But, he did. Now the thief and Lucky were both on foot. The thief ran. Lucky chased him.

After a few minutes, Lucky caught the thief. That's when he noticed how big the thief was. And scary! If Lucky had known the thief was twice his size, he wouldn't have chased him. Lucky knew he was in danger. Then, out of nowhere, the chicken leaped through the air and landed on the teenage thief's head. The chicken started flapping its wings and biting the thief. The thief got scared and ran into the woods.

Lucky was shocked. "Thanks, chicken," he said. "You saved my life. I guess today is my lucky day." The local paper heard about the story and came to take pictures of Lucky and his hero chicken. If the chicken hadn't saved Lucky, it wouldn't have become a hero. Unfortunately, the thief got away.

Now, when Lucky feeds the chickens, he thinks about his adventure and wonders what happened to the chicken thief.

LUCKY'S LUCK

A chicken saved Lucky's life.
