"Environmental city"

Da Nang is a typical city when it comes to environmental protection, the Vietnam News Agency's News newspaper reported.

To build Da Nang into an "environmental city", the city has achieved many outstanding environmental titles such as "One of the 11 environmentally sustainable cities of the region in 2011" (voted by the ASEAN), and "Cities with clean air and low carbon emissions in 2012".

The Ministry of Natural Resources and Environment has recognised Da Nang as "one of the five cities with a good level of environmental protection in 2020".

During the 2016-21 period, Da Nang achieved many impressive environmental protection indicators; all urban and rural households are provided with clean water and sanitation and 88.2 percent of urban wastewater is collected and treated up to environmental standards.

More than 90 percent of hospitals and medical centres have wastewater treatment systems meeting environmental standards.

All industrial zones have standard wastewater treatment systems.

As much as 95 percent of solid waste in urban areas is collected and treated. Daily-life solid waste landfills ensure hygienic standards. All people's feedback and recommendations on environmental pollution through the city's hotline are handled.

To achieve the result, education about environmental protection was carried out very early with the initiative and active participation of local authorities, organisations and individuals.
