

It was a dark and stormy evening when Sally arrived home from university. She felt very tired and was glad to finally be home.

As she was getting ready to take a shower, she heard a strange noise coming from the hall. She was scared because she thought there was a thief in there and she was alone at home. She stood there silently, wondering what to do.

She decided to call the police and ask for help. Unfortunately, she remembered that she had left her cell phone in the hall. So, she took a deep breath, picked up her golf club and slowly went to the hall.

Sally laughed with relief when she saw a big cat sitting on the sofa in the hall. It had come in through an open window. She took the cat to a safe place and gave it some milk and tuna.
