How is your holiday going? This year I'm spending the summer on the <sup>1</sup> southern coast of Sweden with my parents and my brother. Scania is a <sup>2</sup> _____ region. There are lots of natural tourist <sup>3</sup> _____, such as the Söderåsen National Park. We are also planning to visit Malmö and Ystad, which have become famous thanks to the crime stories of Henning Mankell. It is quite <sup>4</sup> _____ to learn that this region of Sweden has its own Stonehenge: Ale's Stones. The formation consists of fifty-nine rocks arranged in an oval shape. As the last few days have been quite cold and <sup>5</sup> _____, we are sitting in our room and planning a bike ride on the national cycling trail. I hope it will stop raining soon.

Sharing is caring

The world's natural resources are limited, so it's a good thing that more and more people are now aware how important <sup>1</sup> _____ (recycle) is. But sorting your rubbish might not be enough - it would be an even better idea to share the things we no longer need. That's why the concept of a 'givebox' is <sup>2</sup> _____ (attract) to many residents of our city. But, what exactly is a givebox? Well, it consists of a piece of furniture (a bookcase, a shelf, or a wardrobe), which is placed in <sup>3</sup> _____ (differ) parts of the city. This is where people can leave items they no longer find useful. They can also take (free of charge) any of the things left by others. These might be used books, toys, household appliances or clothes. In this way, material objects get a second life, which means they can be reused rather than <sup>4</sup> _____ (throw) away. The idea promotes an environmentally friendly lifestyle and helps build a sense of local community. People who visit giveboxes talk to other people, develop <sup>5</sup> _____ (friend), learn about their neighbours and share problems. It benefits everyone in so many ways, doesn't it?

Many people believe that the beret - a small, round and usually woollen hat - is typically worn in France, but in fact it wasn't a French <sup>1</sup> _____ at all. The first mention of the beret comes from the Bible, where it appears in the story of Noah and his Ark. It seems that some wool had been <sup>2</sup> _____ on the floor of his ship by accident and it was walked on by people and animals for days. Noah noticed that it flattened as a result. He cut out a circle of wool, which he wore on his head for protection from the rain. It wasn't until much later that farmers in France started wearing berets to get some protection from the sun, wind and cold. Then, in the nineteenth century, the hat became <sup>3</sup> _____ with artists in France. They probably modelled their look on Rembrandt, the famous Renaissance <sup>4</sup> _____. In the 1930s, thanks to Coco Chanel, the beret was no longer just for men; it also became popular with women. Since then, it has occasionally gone out of fashion, but it remains a popular item in many people's wardrobes. Have you ever <sup>5</sup> _____ one?

Do you know anything about futurists? Are their <sup>1</sup> _____ (predict) based on dreams or the weather? No, they aren't! Instead, they try to predict the future based on recent trends. Their services are used by different businesses, which use futurology to design <sup>2</sup> _____ (success) new products. Futurologists analyse fashions, interview people about their needs and watch out for any important <sup>3</sup> _____ (society) change. For example, knowing that a society is getting older means it's easier to predict what goods and services will be in demand in the future. As a result, it's easier to deliver them more <sup>4</sup> _____ (effect). That's where companies make use of the futurologists' <sup>5</sup> _____ (know). It seems like it's a useful and well-paid job. Would you like to apply for it someday?
