Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow:

In the heart of the bustling city, there stood an ancient library, its grand facade telling stories of centuries past. It was a place where the aroma of old books danced in the air, inviting readers into a world of knowledge and imagination.

The library, established in 1852, had weathered the storms of time and modernization. Its shelves housed a diverse collection of books, from ancient manuscripts to contemporary novels. The creaking wooden floors echoed with the footsteps of generations of readers who sought solace and wisdom within its walls.

As the sun set, casting a warm glow through the stained glass windows, patrons of all ages could be seen engrossed in their reading. Some were nestled in the comfortable armchairs with thick novels, while others hunched over antique desks, exploring the contents of fragile scrolls.

The librarians, clad in traditional attire, moved silently among the bookshelves, offering assistance with a deep knowledge of the library's extensive catalog. The library's charm lay not only in its architecture but also in the vibrant community it fostered - a community bound together by a shared love for the written word.
