3. Explain in your own words why Jonas must start taking a pill every day. What effect do you think the pills will have on him?
4. Why do you think “Stirrings” are treated with pills in this community?
5. Why are the rules always printed in capital letters?

Grammar – future simple (will + inf)

We can use 'will' to talk about future events we believe to be certain.

- The sun will rise over there tomorrow morning.
- Next year, I'll be 50.
- That plane will be late. It always is.
- There won't be any snow. I'm certain. It's too warm.

Often we add 'perhaps', 'maybe', 'probably', 'possibly' to make the belief less certain.

- I'll probably come back later.
- He'll possibly find out when he sees Jenny.
- Maybe it will be OK.
- Perhaps we'll meet again some day.

We often use 'will' with 'I think' or 'I hope'.

- I think I'll go to bed now.
- I think she'll do well in the job.
- I hope you'll enjoy your stay.
- I hope you won't make too much noise.

We use 'will' at the moment we make a new decision or plan. The thought has just come into our head.

- Bye. I'll phone you when I get there.
- I'll answer that.
- I won't tell him. I promise.

Grammar – future simple (be (is, am are) going to + inf)

The one which is used most often in spoken English is 'going to', not 'will'.

We use 'going to' when we want to talk about a plan for the future.

- I'm going to see him later today.
- They're going to launch it next month.
- We're going to have lunch first.
- She's going to see what she can do.
- I'm not going to talk for very long.

Notice that this plan does not have to be for the near future.

- When I retire, I'm going to go back to Barbados to live.
- In ten years' time, I'm going to be boss of my own successful company.

We use 'going to' when we want to make a prediction based on evidence we can see now.

- Look out! That cup is going to fall off.
- Look at those black clouds. It's going to rain soon.
- These figures are really bad. We're going to make a loss.
- You look very tired. You're going to need to stop soon.

We can replace 'going to go' by 'going'.

- I'm going out later.

She's going to the exhibition tomorrow.

Grammar – future continuous (will + be + ing)

We can use 'future continuous' to talk about something that will be in progress at a particular moment in the future.

- This time next week, I'll be sitting on the beach in Barbados.
- I'll be thinking about you all back in the office – and I'll be laughing.
- We'll be enjoying ourselves too, boss. We won't be doing any work while you are not here.

To talk about future events that are fixed or decided.

- I'll be visiting your country on a regular basis. In fact, I'm going to be coming next month.
- He'll be looking after the factory until we can appoint a new manager.
- They'll be thinking about this very carefully over the next few months.

To predict what is happening now.

- Try phoning his hotel. He'll probably still be having breakfast.
- They'll be deciding who gets the contract at this very moment. I'm very nervous.
- She's not in her office. She'll be having lunch in the canteen.

To ask extremely politely, and with no pressure, about future plans.

- Will you be eating with us this evening?
- Will you be needing anything else?

Will they be joining us for dinner?

Grammar – future perfect simple (will + have + p/p)

We can use 'future perfect simple' to talk about what will have been achieved by a certain moment in time.

- We'll have been in these offices for eight years next month.
- She'll have visited ten countries in twelve days by the time she gets back.
- I'll have finished this project by Friday.

If we want to emphasise the continuity of the activity, we can use the continuous form.

- I'll have been working here for 35 years by the time I retire.
- She'll have been driving for more than fifteen hours straight by the time she gets here.
- They'll have been working with us for 15 years by the end of this year.

We can also use 'future perfect simple' to predict what we think has already happened at present.

- He'll have already read the report by now. Too late to change it.
- She'll have boarded her plane. It's too late to contact her.

They'll have decided by now. We should hear the result today or tomorrow
