People often ask which is the most difficult language to learn, and it is not easy to answer because there are many factors to take into consideration. Firstly, in a first language the differences are unimportant as people learn their mother tongue naturally, so the question of how hard a language is to learn is only relevant when learning a second language.

A native speaker of Spanish, for example, will find Portuguese much easier to learn than a native speaker of Chinese, for example, because Portuguese is very similar to Spanish, while Chinese is very different, so first language can affect learning a second language. The greater the differences between the second language and our first, the harder it will be for most people to learn. Many people answer that Chinese is the hardest language to learn, possibly influenced by the thought of learning the Chinese writing system, and the pronunciation of Chinese does appear to be very difficult for many foreign learners. However, for Japanese speakers, who already use Chinese characters in their own language, learning writing will be less difficult than for speakers of languages using the Roman alphabet.

No language is easy to learn well, though languages which are related to our first language are easier. Learning a completely different writing system is a huge challenge, but that does not necessarily make a language more difficult than another. In the end, it is impossible to say that there is one language that is the most difficult language in the world.

17. The question of how hard a language is to learn is relevant to both first and second language acquisition. _____

18. Portuguese is definitely easier than Chinese. _____

19. Many language learners tell that Chinese is the hardest language to learn because of the Chinese writing system, and the pronunciation of Chinese. _____

VI. Choose the word (A, B, C or D) that best fits the blank space in the following passage. (1.5 pt)

Cheap oil and cheap gasoline helped to make modern America. They shaped America's cities, and they were an essential part of the American lifestyle. They were also essential in the great empty states of the West, (23)_____people often have to travel long distances.

Today, Americans consume about 25% of the world's energy... far more than people in other countries; but the situation is (24)_____changing.

Americans are already buying smaller cars, and American cars consume much (25)_____gas than they used to. But in the coming years, they will use less and less oil. They will have to.

There is still a lot of oil (26)_____the ground, but oil and gas must become more expensive in the future. Over 50% of America's traditional oil reserves (27) _____- mostly since 1950.

Nobody knows when America's oil will start running out, but the first problems could come in less than 20 years. And as soon as oil starts running out, (28) _____price will go up very quickly!

In conclusion, the "two-dollar gallon" was good for America. It has encouraged Americans to buy smaller cars, and to use less energy. That way, America's oil will last longer... perhaps until the age of clean green energy arrives.
