What is a Kangaroo?

A kangaroo is an animal found only in Australia, although it has a small relative, called a wallaby, which lives on the Australian island in Tasmania and also in New Guinea. Kangaroos eat grass and plants. They have short front legs, but very long and very strong back legs and tail. These are that they use for sitting up and for jumping. Kangaroos have been known to make forward jumps of over eight meters, and leap across fences more than three meters high. They can also run at speeds over 45 kilometers per hour.

The largest kangaroos are the Great Gray Kangaroo and the Red Kangaroo. Adults grow length of 1.60 meter and weigh over 80 kilos.

Kangaroos are marsupial. This means that the female kangaroo has an external pouch on the front of her body. A baby kangaroo is very tiny when it is born, and it crawls at once into pouch where it spends its first five months of life

Whales are sea-living mammal

They therefore breathe air but cannot survive on land. Some species are very large indeed and the blue whale, which can exceed 30m in length, is the largest animal to have lived on earth. Superficially, the whale looks rather like a fish, but there are important differences in its external structure: its tail consists of a pair of broad, flat, horizontal paddles (the tail of a fish is vertical) and it has a single nostril on top of its large, broad head. The skin is smooth and shiny and beneath it lies a layer of fat (blubber). This is up to 30 cm in thickness and serves to conserve heat and body fluids.

15. What is the purpose of the text above ?
A. to describe whales in specific C. to explain how whales breathe
B. to retell about the whales's life D. to describe whales in general
16. What does the text mostly about ?
A. whales C.. whale's tail
B. whale's skin D.whale's fat
17. They therefore breathe air but cannot survive on land .
The bold type word "They" refers to....

Dear Emily,

How are you doing ? remember me ? We met at Smutzer Primate Museum in Ragunan Zoo, Jakarta last month. I'm really glad that you chose my country to spend your vacation. Sorry, I can't enclose our photos here, because you know, my youngest brother, Irfan, has deleted them. I had not kept them yet in the camera. Here, I give you some photos of Irfan's birthday. We celebrated it by having lunch together. You can see my big family. My mom roasted three big fish for us and we had hot chili sauce of sambal to eat with that roasted fish, Hmmm yummy !

How about your activity this semester ? You're in class 11th , right ? I want to know about Victoria. I want to be your penpall, so I can improve my English and you can improve your Bahasa Indonesia too. Okay, that's all for the first letter. I'm looking forward to hearing for you.

Send my love to your mom and grandma. Bye...

Your pall,

Mirda

Read the following text to answer question 21-25

Pollution is contamination of Earth's environment with materials that interfere with human health, the quality of life, or the natural functioning of ecosystems (living organisms and their physical surroundings). Although some environmental pollution is a result of natural causes such as volcanic eruptions, most is caused by human activities.

There are two main categories of polluting materials, or pollutants. Biodegradable pollutants are materials, such as sewage, that rapidly decompose by natural processes. These pollutants become a problem when added to the environment faster than they can decompose. Nondegradable pollutants are materials that either do not decompose or decompose slowly in the natural environment. Once contamination occurs, it is difficult or impossible to remove these pollutants from the environment.

Pollution also has a dramatic effect on natural resources. Ecosystems such as forests, wetlands, coral reefs, and rivers perform many important services for Earth's environment. They enhance water and air quality, provide habitat for plants and animals, and provide food and medicines. Any or all of these ecosystem functions may be impaired or destroyed by pollution.
