

My mother's older sister, Jill, is the relative I admire the most. We don't live near each other, but most years, I see her at Christmas and in the summer, and we keep in touch on social media.

Although she's in her 50s, she seems a lot younger: she's a fun-loving person with a really positive outlook. She's medium-height with shoulder-length brown hair. She dresses well, but she's not an extravagant person, and she doesn't like spending a lot of money on clothes.

She doesn't go to work anymore, but she used to be a social worker. One of the things I most admire about her is that she's an extremely caring person and is always looking out for other people. I remember when she was making meals daily for an elderly neighbor who had had an operation, and now she's taking care of my uncle full-time as he's not well.

I really love spending time with her as she is so kind, patient and caring, and she is a lot of fun to be with.
