

BIGGER, TALLER AND FASTER THINGS

In a small village, there were three friends: Lily, Max, and Sam. Lily was tall, Max was taller, but Sam was the tallest.

One sunny day, they went to the park. Lily saw a big tree, Max saw a _____ tree, but Sam saw the _____ tree. "This tree is _____ than that one," said Max to Lily.

They decided to have a picnic. Lily brought a small sandwich, Max brought a bigger sandwich, but Sam brought the _____ sandwich. "My sandwich is _____ than yours," said Max to Lily. "But mine is the biggest," said Sam.

After eating, they wanted to play with a ball. Lily had a red ball, Max had a _____ blue ball, but Sam had the biggest green ball. "Your ball is bigger than mine," said Lily to Max. "But Sam's ball is the _____," said Max.

In the afternoon, they saw three dogs. The first dog was fast, the second dog was _____, but the third dog was the _____. "This dog is _____ than the first one," said Lily, pointing to the second dog. "But the third dog is _____," said Sam.

When it was time to go home, they talked about their day. Lily said, "Today was a good day." Max replied, "Today was _____ than yesterday." Sam smiled and said, "Today was _____ day ever!"

And so, the three friends had the best time, always finding bigger, taller, and faster things to enjoy together.
