PAST CONTINUOUS REVIEW

Background situations

We often use the past continuous to describe a 'background' situation in the past:
When we arrived at the beach, the sun wasn't shining.

We also use the past continuous to 'set the scene' for a story or account of something that happened; the actions that follow are in the past simple: Dana was living in Istanbul that summer. Isik was working at the same school as her. As soon as they met, they immediately got on with each other ...

We don't usually use continuous forms of state verbs (e.g. like, see, hear, think, agree).

3) Write the words in the correct order to make sentences. Put the verbs in the PAST CONTINUOUS.

0. At that man you why stare?

Why were you staring at that man?

1. Not work during the strike they.

2. Where you at the start of the year live?

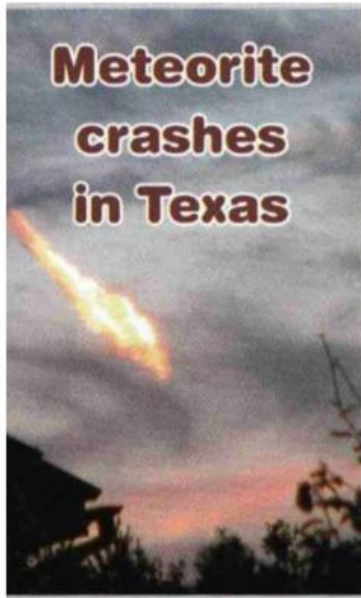

3. Not feel yesterday morning I very well.

4. Heavily it rain and the rivers rise.

5. She study while I watch TV.

4) Read the article and choose the correct words.
