7. Questions about the past

Structures to talk about past events:

Q: When was the last time you visited a museum?

Answer 1: Ever since I graduated and worked as a researcher, I've never had a chance to visit any museum much as I wish to. I suppose the last time I paid one a visit must have been during my time at primary school. What a pity!

Answer 2: I can't really think of the answer for this question off the top of my head, perhaps because it has been such a long time since the last time I went to a museum. However, I don't think I've ever paid a visit to any place of such a kind after primary school.

Q: Did you go to any museums when you were a child?

Answer 1: I used to go to museums a lot. I mean, it was one of the 'compulsory' extracurricular activities that we had back in primary school. We went to a different museum each year with the whole school, and nobody was allowed to be absent from this annual activity, even if you were sick that day.

Answer 2: I did, very often actually. As I've said before, The Vietnam Museum of Ethology was my childhood! If my memory serves me well, it was 2007 spring when I first visited the place. I still remember vividly how amazed I was stepping into the museum!

Q: What are some recent changes in your local area?

Answer 1: My hometown developed significantly in the last twenty years. It became industrialized, which I think is beneficial to us residents and to our local economy since jobs have been generated. (However, the saddest thing about its development is that it brings so much pollution. I think we're paying the price now for converting our agricultural lands to industrial lands.)

Answer 2: There are numerous changes that have happened in my city. One of the most obvious changes is that our city was becoming more and more densely populated in the past five years since job opportunities are centered in our city. The living cost and noise pollution has become undeniably high, the quality of education has become more competitive, and many more. So basically, our city has progressed, but there are underlying issues that need to be improved.

8. Questions about the future

Structures to talk about future events:

Q: Is there anything you'd like to change in your life? / What do you plan to change next year?

Answer 1: Well, actually, I intend to change my eating habits because I really want to shed some extra pounds and live healthily. Just so you know, I'm going to do this for myself not because people judge me for being overweight. I just realized that it's high time to prioritize my health.

Answer 2: Well, let me think, I guess I'd like to change my perspective on life. Honestly, I've been so pessimistic about life, because I am afraid that I may end up being disappointed if I think too positively. However, lately, I realized that this is limiting myself and I would not be able to grow as a person. Hence, I think I will train my mind to change that way of thinking. Also, I would need to avoid thinking negatively as well.

Q: How useful will English be for your future?

Answer: Of course, it is always an advantage to know a foreign language like English, and I really think that it will be highly useful for my future because I am planning to move to an English speaking country for higher studies. Besides studies, English will surely help me communicate with people from other countries in my personal and professional life. Finally, knowing this language will help me read many books which are written only in English.

Q: How much travelling do you hope to do in the future?

Answer 1: I am planning to do a lot of travelling in my own country because it is a very beautiful country, and it has pretty much everything to offer. In the future, I would be able to do a lot of travelling to other foreign countries also because I should have more money and free time to spend after settling down with life and career.

Answer 2: As much as possible I wish. Since I was a child, I've always had a strong desire for travelling. Before reaching 30, I hope I will have visited at least three different countries. I want to see in person every corner of the world and get a broader view of life. I just hope the future will treat me well, and it would/will be great if my travel desire is fulfilled
