

Put in a/an or the.

Tina wants to buy a car. She has come to see Ryan, who is trying to sell his.

TINA: So, you don't say much in your advert. Is this (1) an old car?

RYAN: Not very old. Come and have a look at it.

TINA: Were you (2) the first owner?

RYAN: No, I got it two years ago.

TINA: Have you driven it a lot?

RYAN: Well, I drive to my office in (3) the city centre five days (4) a week, but I don't use it much at weekends.

TINA: I see. Now, the thing is, I'm (5) a doctor. I've just started work at (6) the hospital in Hills Road. I'm on call a lot of the time and I have to find (7) a car which is really reliable. (8) The car I used to have was always breaking down and giving me problems.

RYAN: Oh, this one's very good. It may not be (9) the fastest car around, but it always gets there eventually. And it's got (10) a new set of tyres.

TINA: Right. It's good to know that. Can I go for (11) a test drive?

RYAN: Um, actually, that's not possible right now.

TINA: Why not?

RYAN: Well, I'm afraid it won't start. You see, I've just realised that (12) the battery is flat.
