LKPD REPORT TEXT

A. Match the right column with the left one!

1. Bekantan is one type of monkey that has a big The size of male body is able to reach 75 centimeters and weight ranges 24 kilograms. While the female bekantan has a body size of about 60 centimeters and weight of approximately 12 kilogramsand long nose and its color is reddish brown.	Physical Appearance
2. Bekantan are endemic to the island of Borneo, which are scattered in mangroves, swamps and coastal forests	Behaviour
3. Bekantan are good at expressing themselves in various conditions, such as when they are angry and happy, their nose will swell and turn red. When in danger, the proboscis monkey will make a loud sound like a car horn as a warning and its nose will stick out straight	Food
4. While their diets change according to seasonal availability, proboscis monkeys prefer young leaves and unripe, non-fleshy fruits.	Daily life
5. Proboscis monkeys are well-known (and frankly beloved) for their bulbous noses that droop down over their mouths. This feature is unique to males.	Size and weight
6. These monkeys live in intricate communities where group membership can change easily. They peacefully share territories, they rarely engage in conflicts, and multiple small groups often gather to eat, sleep, and socialize.	Habitat

B. Answer the questions!

1. Do you think that Bekantan is endangered animal?
2. Why do you think so?
3. What are the main threat of Bekantan?
4. Why do you say so?

LIVEWORKSHEETS

LIVEWORKSHEETS