

A family dinner

My family and I went out to dinner at a new restaurant, when we arrived a waiter asked us how many people we were, to which dad replied, "Table for five, please." After we sat down, the waiter gave us the menu, it was so much food I didn't know what to choose, fortunately the waiter recommended we start with a starter while we thought about the main course. He also offered us drinks like wine, but since my brothers and I are still very young, we had to drink sparkling water.

After enjoying the starter, we all decided to try the main course of the day, it was delicious, but not as delicious as the dessert we ordered.

To finish our dinner out, dad asked the waiter for the bill and from his reaction, it must have been very expensive.

After carefully reading the previous reading, answer the questions.

- What did they family do?
 - a) They went out to dinner at a new restaurant
 - b) They made their own food.
 - c) Her dad buy a new kitchen.
- Why did the children drink sparkling water?
 - a) They drinked soda
 - b) They wanted juice
 - c) Because they were too young for wine
- What did the waiter recommend to start with?
 - a) Ordering a starter while deciding on the main course
 - b) Going to another restaurant
 - c) Skip the starter
- What was the most delicious part of the meal?
 - a) The starter
 - b) The dessert was the most delicious part of the meal
 - c) The main course

