Tired of spending your holidays at the beach?

When it comes to holidays, people get really happy. They want to enjoy those few weeks as much as possible, but they are getting tired of doing the same. That is why some people have stopped going to sunny beaches and have started working on different activities that may help animals and nature.

"What's another trip to the Bahamas?" asks Debbie Jacobs, owner of a trip company. "Today, people want to do something different. Many people know they have a very good life, and they would enjoy to give something back." Short time helping programs in which people do not get any money are the ones people choose the most.

For animal lovers, that means getting into nature-friendly activities that they would never have in their normal lives. From taking photos of sea animals in the Alaskan coast to saving cows and pigs, these people are finding that spending their time helping animals is a greater option than visiting well-known places.

There are several places where you can spend a few days, a week, or longer giving some help to wild and domesticated animals. On most of these trips, people need to participate in cleaning and other difficult activities; Jacob says they return home with more than sunburn because they see the difference they can make.

6. What does Debbie Jacobs do?
