Rearrange the plot of the film:

Of the 45 passengers on board, 29 survive the initial crash.

However, the survivors draw upon the cooperative teamwork they learned through rugby in order to escape the mountains.

On October 13, 1972, Flight 571, chartered by an Uruguayan rugby football team and their supporters crashes into a glacier in the heart of the Andes mountains.

The survivors are forced to resort to survival cannibalism of those who had already died in order to stay alive.
