The Fox and the Crow

Second (2nd.)	Third (3rd.)	Fourth (4th.)	Fifth (5th.)
Sixth (6th.)	Seventh (7th.)	Eighth (8th.)	ninth (9th.)

When the crow heard the praise of the fox, he became proud and happy. The crow flapped his wings triumphantly.	The crow thought, "The fox could be right. I am the king of the birds. I'll let him hear my sweet voice."	The fox looked up at the crow and said, "You are a fine crow! What lovely shiny feathers you have! You are the King of the Birds!"	He stopped under the tree and saw the crow. "Mmm. I'd like to have a bite of that cheese," he thought.
At that moment a clever fox was passing by. Sniff! Sniff! "What is that I smell?" he said.	Then the fox said to the crow, "Silly crow. That was the worst voice I've ever heard, but most of all, you're the most stupid bird I've ever met! And thanks for the cheese." And he ran off into the woods.	And the fox went on, "You must have the most wonderful singing voice. King of the birds, let me hear a sweet song."	The crow opened his beak and began to sing, "Cral Cral Cral" Then the piece of cheese fell through the air. At once the fox ran to it and ate it up.
Moral: The flatterer lives at the expense of those who will listen to him
