The Big T

1 I love my T-shirts and I wear them all the time. So, when were they invented?

The first T-shirts were produced in 1904 as underwear. In 1905 sailors in the American Navy wore them under their uniforms. Later, farm workers started wearing them while they were doing their chores.

2 T-shirts only became popular in the 1950s, when they were worn by actors like Marlon Brando and James Dean in popular films. By the 1970s, everyone had one or more T-shirts. They were usually made of cotton, polyester (a man-made material), or cotton with polyester.

3 Today most people own T-shirts. The most popular colours are white, then black, dark blue and red. They can be plain, patterned or have an image on them, T-shirts are cheap and comfortable and that's why they're popular. Last year billions of T-shirts were sold worldwide!
