

The Who By Theodor S. Dr. Odorono

She sang the best she 'd ever sung (ever sing)
She couldn't ever sing any better
But Mister Davidson never _____
She knew he would forget her
She'd _____ him there
And put herself to ransom
He _____
He really was quite handsome
She _____ her best
She couldn't ever look any better
But she knew she'd _____ the test
She knew he would forget her
Triumphant was the way she felt
As she _____ the applause
Triumphant was the way she felt
When she _____ him
at the dressing room door
She was happier than she'd _____
As he praised her for her grace
But his expression changed, she _____
As he leant to Kiss her face.
