

A Weekend in the Park

Samantha and her friends are planning a picnic this weekend. They're excited but are a bit worried about the weather.

"Let's check the forecast," Samantha says as she looks at her phone. "It might rain on Saturday, but it may be sunny on Sunday."

"Do you think we should change our plans?" asks John.

"Well," replies Samantha, "if it might rain, we could have the picnic in the park on Sunday instead. The forecast says it may be dry then."

"Sounds like a good idea," says Lisa. "But what if it might be windy on Sunday too?"

"True," Samantha agrees. "We should be prepared for both possibilities. If it might rain, we can bring some raincoats. And if it may be windy, we should have some blankets ready."

John adds, "I hope it might just be a little cloudy and not too cold."

"Let's keep an eye on the weather updates," Samantha concludes. "It may change, but we'll be ready for anything."
