OUT-FOXED!

Two clever foxes were making life difficult for Dublin Zoo last week. The problem was that the foxes were killing some of the zoo animals. Five exotic animals were already dead by last Friday. The zoo director said the foxes came from Phoenix Park, which is close to the zoo.

"There's a healthy population of foxes there", the director said. "Because there's a lot of building activity at the zoo, we think a gate was open and this is how the foxes got in." The foxes have now killed three more South American Maras (which look a bit like rabbits), a penguin and a parrot. Two days ago one of the two foxes was shot, but the other one is still around. "We even got a fox alarm bell and a trained dog, but we're out-foxed by this fox", said the director.
