A: This is Nigella Compton with the DBC radio network and Eye on the Globe. We're talking to the new Miss Universal Beauty, Maya Prasad, who has just won her title at the tenth annual Miss Universal Beauty pageant in Kuala Lumpur. And we're also talking to Ricardo Figueroa, the chief judge of the 1. _____ (7 letters) this year. Welcome, Ms. Prasad—or, should I say, Welcome Miss Universal Beauty?

B: Hello, Nigella. Please call me Maya. Thank you for inviting me.

A: And welcome, Mr. Figueroa. Thank you.

A: My pleasure. Maya, please tell our listeners what it's like to have been chosen Miss Universal Beauty. Do you feel like the most 2. _____ woman in the world?

B: Uh . . . actually, no. To tell you the truth, the idea is very flattering, but I don't actually feel that beautiful. All the contestants were beautiful. Many, I think, were much more 3. _____ than I am. I think I was very 4. _____.

A: One of the things that's special about the Miss Universal Beauty contest is that it emphasizes both 5. _____ and 6. _____ beauty. Mr. Figueroa, could you say a few words about that for us?

C: Certainly. The Miss Universal Beauty contest tries to choose contestants who exhibit all the features of traditional physical beauty: 7. _____, 8. _____, beautiful 9. _____ and 10. _____ — those things everyone understands to represent beauty. But, true beauty goes beyond that. Helen Keller, who was both blind and deaf, said something very profound and true about beauty: "The best and most beautiful things in the world cannot be seen, nor touched . . . but are felt in the 11. _____." We at the Miss Universal Beauty contest have tried to make that our 12. _____ (5 letters, đồng nghĩa với slogan). We try to find that beauty that touches our 13. _____. (số nhiều)

A: Very interesting. And all the more so since Helen Keller was blind and couldn't see what people looked like. She still had a concept of beauty. "The most beautiful things are felt in the heart." What, in your opinion, are those things—those beautiful things— that we feel in the heart?

C: Well, I think Helen Keller was describing inner beauty—those qualities that last longer than youth and can exist even when health has gone. Qualities such as 14. _____, 15. _____ (tốt tính, tốt bụng, +ness) to other people, truthfulness—qualities that everyone appreciates—no matter where in the world they live.

B: I've always felt that 16. _____ beauty can't last 17. _____. People think it's beauty that brings you love, but I'm not so sure. I've always loved the Oscar Hammerstein song that says: "Do you love me because I'm beautiful, or am I beautiful because you love me?"

A: Hmm. Very interesting food for thought. I would imagine that that attitude will help you lead a happy life.

C: I'd like to say that the judges thought that Maya presented an almost perfect 18. _____ (7 letters) between outer and inner beauty. Her happiness with life is one of the strongest features of her inner beauty. But before we finish, let me just read a little from their written comments: Maya has:

19. _____: She expresses her 20. _____ for others easily.

21. _____ (7 letters, P _ t _ e n _ e): She is a wonderful 22. _____ and lets other speak. She doesn't rush them.

B: Oh, Mr. Figueroa. I can't believe anyone said all this about me. I'm just a regular person!

C: Maya, that comment shows us that you are also very modest—Modesty is actually another of the features of your inner beauty. But let me continue . . . Maya's also a woman of great 23. _____ and 24. _____ (giống 14, 15): She spends time helping other people who have 25. _____ (số nhiều). Last year she taught art to children in the public hospital. So her happiness, her warmth, her patience, and her kindness shine through and make her physical beauty all the more radiant.

A: Thank you to you both.
