

Indian paintings have a very long tradition and history in Indian art. There are different forms, styles and schools of painting.

Read the clues to fill in the blanks. Words are given in the Help Card.

The _____ style of painting, whose name comes from the Hindi word for mountain, was largely based in the historic town of Kangra in Himachal Pradesh.

These beautiful paintings are examples of Buddhist art and can be seen at the _____ Caves in Maharashtra.

The Mughal Emperors, especially Akbar, Jahangir and Shah Jahan, popularised a style of painting where small paintings, usually part of books, were made. These tiny but highly detailed paintings are called _____ paintings.

The oldest form of art in India is a number of paintings that can be seen in _____ especially those at Bhimbetka. Very often, these were painted with a reddish material called Geru, which is still used to paint pottery.

Kishangarh is a small town in the desert state of _____ known for the same kind of painting.

This lovely painting is one of hundreds made by _____, an artist from Kerala, who is well-known for depicting gods and goddesses.

_____ is a century old technique from Odisha that uses palm leaves for the portrayal of epic and folk love.

_____ art, created with white paste made from rice and water, is named after the group of tribal people who make these paintings.

This is a self-portrait by _____ of India-Hungarian parentage.

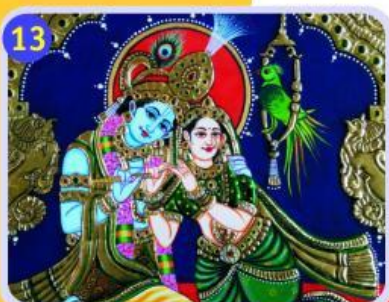

This painting is in the Kalighat Style from _____. One of the most famous artists of this style was Jamini Roy.

_____ is a centuries-old style of painting from Mithila in Bihar that gets its name from the words for honey and forest.

This painting of horses was made by _____ who is considered among the greatest of modern Indian painters.

_____ paintings, which are known for their use of gold paint and semi-precious stones, are named after a town, also called Thanjavur, in Tamil Nadu.

Madhubani, Amrita Sher-Gil, Pahari, Rajasthan, Pattachitra, Ajanta, Warli, Miniature, Bengal, MF Hussain, Tanjore, Caves, Raja Ravi Verma