

The Frogs in the Hole

Five frogs are playing among the trees in the forest.

Suddenly, two of them fall into a deep hole.

"Help," they cry. "Friends, come and help us get out of here!"

"Sorry," their friends say. "Nobody can help you. the hole is too deep. You'll never get out, so don't even try. You'll die in there!"

But the two frogs don't want to die. "Let's jump as high as we can," one of them says.

"Ready, steady, up we go!

And...once again! Not high enough. We must try harder!

All that time, their friends keep yelling, 'Stop trying! You'll never get out of the hole!'

One of the frogs in the hole hears his friends' words.

"They are right," he says. "I'll never get out of here."

He falls down and dies.

The other frog doesn't give up. "I must try harder, "he thinks. "Never say 'Die!' Up frog, and try! Each time, he jumps higher and higher.

Again his friends yell, "Stop trying. Frogs can't jump out of such a deep hole!"

"I can do it!" the frog thinks. "I can fly if I want to!"

He tries again and... this time he jumps out of the hole.

"Here I am!" he says happily.

His friends are amazed.

"How did you do it?"

They ask.

They see that the frog is deaf.

The frog saw his friends yelling and thought that they said, "try, try, try again! We believe in you!"
