Children in Need

I volunteered with children in need last year. My job was to play with them, help them with homework, and talk to them. It was important to volunteer because these children don't always have everything they need. Some of them don't have enough help at home or feel lonely. I wanted to make them feel happy and supported.

I liked volunteering because the children were very kind and funny. They were always happy to see me, and I enjoyed spending time with them. I helped them with their schoolwork, and we played games together. It made me feel good when they smiled and learned new things. Sometimes it was hard because some of the children were sad or had problems, but I was happy to help them. Volunteering with children taught me a lot about being patient and caring. I would like to do it again because it made me feel helpful and happy.
