Taking Care of Your Feelings and Others by Fred Shirlock

Feeling overwhelmed can be a normal part of life, especially when you're going through changes or facing new challenges. You should talk to someone you trust when you feel this way because sharing your emotions can help you feel better. It's important to remember that you mustn't keep your feelings to yourself for too long.

Sometimes, you might feel that you're alone, but this isn't true. You may not always know how others feel, so it's important to ask and listen carefully. If you see someone struggling, you should try to support them. You don't have to fix all their problems, but being there can make a big difference.

Remember, you must take care of yourself too. You have to find time to rest and do things that make you happy. Taking care of your mental health should be a priority because it can affect everything else in your life.

2) Read again and choose the correct option.

What is the purpose of offering support when someone is struggling?

- a) You must solve their problems immediately.
- b) You should show empathy, even if you can't fix everything.
- c) You may decide not to talk to them.
- d) You can ignore them if you are also feeling overwhelmed.

Why is taking care of your mental health important, according to the text?

- a) Because it might not affect anything else in your life.
- b) Because you have to be happy all the time.
- c) Because your mental health can impact other aspects of your life.
- d) Because you mustn't share your feelings with others.

USE OF ENGLISH

1) Choose the correct preposition to complete the letter.

Hi Fran,

Sorry I've taken so long to reply. You ask about our friends here, so here's what's happening. Anna, as you know, was disappointed (1) of / on / with her last exam results so she's working harder now, but I think she's getting tired (2) about / of / on studying all the time. She usually likes to go out in the evenings, so she must be getting very bored (3) with / on / about life. Mike is still very keen (4) of / on / with football and is quite proud (5) on / with / of the two goals he scored last Saturday, but he can't play next week and he's sad (6) about / of / with that. Kay, you might remember, is crazy (7) on / with / about music and has always wanted to be a singer. Well, a band has asked her to sing with them at a concert next Friday. She's really nervous (8) on / about / with singing in front of all those people, but I don't think she should be frightened (9) with / of / on doing it. I've told her that some people will be quite jealous (10) of / on / about her! Well, that's all for now.

Lots of love,

Jamie
