Marie

I have to learn lots of words for an English test, but I find it difficult to remember new words! What should I do?

You can try lots of things, but my favourite is called a 'memory palace'. Start in a quiet room with no distractions. Close your eyes and imagine, for example, your house and all the rooms and objects in it. Now, think of a new word, like 'cheat'. 'Cheat' rhymes with 'seat'. In your head, imagine the word 'cheat' on a seat at home, or next to the chocolate and cheese to eat in the fridge. Do what works for you, but you must really try to see it and where it is in your head. Then, in the test, go into your 'memory palace', walk to the room and 'get', or remember, the word when you need it.

Mr Jenkins
