It is now easier than ever to access the internet on your phone or tablet. Many young people are spending more time online, with both consequences.

One advantage of the internet is young people can do research on their schoolwork. This helps to widen their knowledge and improve their grades. Moreover, people can practice foreign languages by chatting with friends in other countries.

On the other hand, there are also negative consequences. Some young people become addicted to online gaming and wasting time playing these games. This affects their schoolwork, the amount of exercise, and their social lives. In addition, excessive internet use means they hardly talk to their families.

To sum up, spending time on the internet can have both negative and positive impacts on young people. Personally, I think the internet is an incredible tool and the benefits outweigh the dangers. However, we should be careful not to use the internet excessively.
