One day, a lion was sleeping peacefully under a tree. Suddenly, a little mouse ran across his nose and woke him up. The lion caught the mouse with his big paw and roared angrily, "How dare you wake me up? I will eat you!"

The mouse, trembling with fear, said, "Please, mighty lion, let me go. If you spare my life, I will surely help you someday." The lion laughed at the idea of a tiny mouse helping a great lion, but he decided to let the mouse go.

A few days later, the lion was caught in a hunter's net. He struggled but could not escape. The mouse heard the lion's roar and ran to help. Using his small, sharp teeth, the mouse chewed through the ropes and set the lion free.

Last August 17th, my school held a celebration for Independence Day. The event started early in the morning with a flag-raising ceremony. All students and teachers gathered in the schoolyard, wearing red and white outfits to show their patriotism.

After the ceremony, we participated in various fun competitions, such as sack races, eating crackers, and tug-of-war. My friends and I joined the sack race and laughed so much when we kept falling down. In the afternoon, there was a performance of traditional dances and music, which made the celebration even more special.

By the end of the day, everyone felt happy and proud to celebrate the country's independence. It was a memorable day full of joy and togetherness.
