JANE & THE CITY

Jane had always lived in the city, among the tall skyscrapers and busy streets. Growing up in such a fast-paced environment had its benefits. 1 _____. However, she was increasingly tired of everything around her: the noise, the traffic, the stress.

Everything changed when she visited her grandparents in the countryside one summer. Walking through the vast green fields, listening to the gentle chirping of the birds, and feeling the cool breeze on her face was a refreshing experience. 2 _____.

By the end of her stay, Jane found herself contemplating a life outside the city. She felt an unusual connection to nature and started exploring the idea of permanently moving to a rural area. Six months later, Jane made up her mind and decided to leave her city apartment. 3 _____. Her friends thought she was making a hasty decision, but she felt it was the right choice for her.

Now, living in the countryside, she has her own garden and even a few farm animals. 4 _____. There's a sense of community she had never experienced before. While she occasionally misses the convenience of city life, the natural beauty and calmness of her new surroundings more than make up for it. 5 _____. She often jokes that the only traffic she encounters now are the sheep crossing the road.

- A.The peace and quiet were in complete contrast to the noisy city life she was accustomed to.
- B.She secured a job in a local school and rented a small cottage by the river.
