Declan McKenna's album What Do You Think About the Car? is fun, smart, and emotional. Declan is a young singer from England who became famous after his song Brazil went viral. He writes songs that talk about important topics like war, religion, fairness, and being young.

The song Brazil is very powerful because it criticizes how FIFA, the football organization, spends a lot of money on events while many people in Brazil live in poverty. Another important song, Paracetamol, focuses on how young people who are different sometimes feel alone and are not treated well by society.

Declan's lyrics show that he cares about the world, but he also talks about personal feelings, like love, sadness, and growing up. The album features a mix of instruments like guitars, drums, and keyboards that create a bright and energetic sound.

His music is a mix of indie pop and rock, and it often sounds cheerful, even when the lyrics are serious. The songs have big choruses, which make them easy to sing along to.

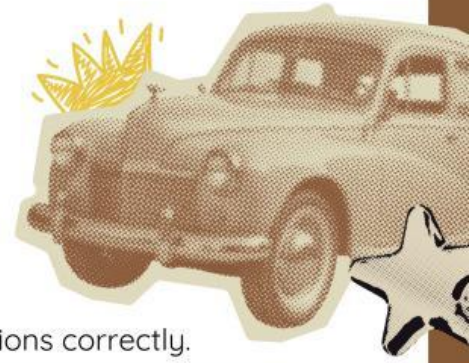

Declan is a creative artist who uses his music to send strong messages. What Do You Think About the Car? is more than just fun music—it makes listeners think about life, fairness, and how we can make the world better. I give this album 4 out of 5 stars. Declan's music is special because it mixes cheerful sounds with meaningful lyrics.
