At first, the changes happened _____. But with each day, he became better. The more he learned, the more _____ he felt. He knew that each small step was important. His friends and family noticed the _____ in him. They said he was more _____ to others and always smiling.

One day, John met a former teacher, who told him, "You've worked hard. Your progress is real. I _____ your efforts." That made John very proud.

Now, John is not only a worker in an office but also a teacher who helps others. His life has changed for the better. He knows that with patience, education, and a positive attitude, everything is possible.
