A trip to Dunia Fantasi

Last weekend, my family and I went to Dunia Fantasi to celebrate my success of getting good grade in the last semester examination. There were many rides and attractions in Dunia Fantasi as well as the people that made the day hotter.

Soon after arriving, I ran to my favorite ride, Halilintar. It actually was my second time being there that I knew enough where I should go to have fun. I had to queue before riding and wait for about ten minutes before I finally felt my heart was going to jump from my chest. Next, I rode Kora-kora. This ride was more challenging than Halilintar that I felt my legs had gone to sleep.

After two hours playing, I joined my mother, father, and baby brother in a quieter place to have lunch. Before going home, I had planned to challenge myself to ride Tornado, but my two-years old brother began to cry. So, we had to go home soon. My mother said that the crowd had made him uncomfortable. I thought, if he was only five years older, he would be happy being here and ask me to accompany him ride on Bianglala, Niagara Falls, Arung Jeram, or even Kicir-Kicir. I couldn't ride on the most challenging ride, Tornado. However, I enjoyed the day. It was full of fun.
