

Complete this blog extract about a theatre trip using the words in the box. One word is not used.

acting audience play performance public scene spectators stage

I recently attended a (0) performance of the new (1) City Life at the Arthouse Theatre. The (2) was absolutely fantastic, something I wasn't expecting from a cast of unknown performers – and I'm so glad I got the chance to see it. The theatre itself has only just reopened to the (3) after the fire two years ago, so this represented an excellent choice as its first production. The famous round (4) is still there, which means the actors have nowhere to hide as the (5) have a 360-degree view. I won't reveal the ending, but the final (6) will leave you in shock. Book now to avoid disappointment.