I'm going to talk about the importance of spending more money on music in schools. I'll begin 1 _____ a discussion about the role of music in schools. 2 _____, I'm going to discuss how playing a musical instrument is good for your brain development. 3 _____ I'm going to talk about how playing a musical instrument helps you to do better at school and why schools should therefore pay for all students to learn an instrument. Then I'll 4 _____ up the main points before taking questions. I'd like to start by 5 _____ that people generally don't think music is an important subject. I'll tell you why I 6 _____ that. Music is not a main subject in most schools in the UK. Most children who sing or play a musical instrument do this in extra curricular clubs at the end of the school day. Parents pay for these classes and they are expensive. First 7 _____ all, we need to ask ourselves, is music a subject that should just be a choice for students with rich parents? Or should it be compulsory in every school, as I believe it should, with schools paying for instruments for students to practise on? The 8 _____ I say that is because many studies show us that musical children get better scores in subjects like maths. Now I'd like to move 9 _____ to my next point about music and the brain. If you play an instrument, it helps your brain development. There are a number of 10 _____ why I believe this. First,
