Great markets around the world

1 Jardine's Crescent, Hong Kong

This market is in the heart of the shopping area, just a short walk away from the subway. It's often very busy, and there are many stalls selling cheap clothes for both men and women. You can also buy inexpensive jewelry.

2 Khan El-Khalili, Cairo

A traditional Egyptian market that opened in the fourteenth century. You can buy wonderful handmade accessories and jewelry. All the sellers will try to talk to you, and there are no prices – you have to discuss the price with the sellers! If you discuss it for long enough, the final price can be great value!

3 El Bazaar Sabado, Mexico City

It's only open on Saturdays, but this is a great place to find local art, as well as the latest fashions. You can find clothes from designers like Carla Fernandez at reasonable prices. There are also souvenirs for tourists, but be careful because some souvenirs are overpriced.

2 Which market should each person visit?

1. Julia wants to buy a designer dress.

2. Pete loves talking to store assistants.

3. Virginia wants to buy some cheap clothes for her son.
