How the Engulfing Pattern Indicator Works

The Engulfing Indicator works based on candlestick patterns and displays bullish engulfing patterns in blue and bearish engulfing patterns in red on the chart.

This indicator helps traders easily identify engulfing patterns by precisely displaying these patterns.

Bullish Pattern of the Engulfing Indicator

The Engulfing Pattern Indicator shows a bullish pattern when it forms below two moving averages with periods of (5,20).

It identifies a bullish pattern when the candle's opening price is lower than the previous bearish candle's closing price, and its closing price is higher than the last bearish candle's.

Bullish Engulfing Pattern

Bearish Pattern of the Engulfing Indicator

When the pattern forms above the moving averages, with the opening price of the candle being higher than the opening price of the previous bullish candle and the closing price of the candle being lower than the closing price of the last bullish candle, it is considered a bearish engulfing pattern and is displayed on the chart.
