HOW TO BE SIXTEEN

Sixteen is one of the four ages of man that appears to be significant but isn't. The first is four -- by this stage, you (1) can / may probably eat, talk and walk. You then realise that, despite (2) being able to / being allowed to do all these things, you're nowhere near being an adult.

When you get to sixteen, you (3) can / may cook, you (4) will / would have strong opinions and you (5) can / may well be learning to drive. You then realise that, despite being so talented, you're still no closer to being an adult.

The other two ages are thirty and sixty. Thirty is when you're meant to put aside all the things of youth and grow up -- you (6) may / might decide to do this, but it generally takes another fifteen years. When you get to sixty, you're traditionally meant to be old, but due to the late running of previous decades, this (7) can / may not happen until you're in your eighties.

When you get to sixteen, it's difficult to know precisely what to celebrate, as much of the good stuff is still two years away. So it's a good idea to speak to your grandparents about what they (8) used to / would like about being teenagers and about what they miss from when they were sixteen. Top of their list (9) could / might be fully functional knees. So you (10) could / may want to spend an hour or two on your sixteenth birthday making use of your perfect knees. The other big thing your grandparents (11) can / might miss is the hearing of a sixteen-year-old. These days, just about the only thing they (12) can / could hear clearly is the noise of their knees creaking. Reward yourself on your birthday by using your perfect hearing. Perhaps you (13) can / could listen to something your parents are saying.

'Sweet sixteen' is quite a jump from 'foul fifteen'. 'Sweet' refers to the fact that life (14) can / may still be sweet. People (15) will / would soon stop asking you what you want to be when you grow up, because within a year or two it's going to be obvious. The decisions you make when you're sixteen (16) may / could well affect whether or not your life in the long-term will be sweet. So no pressure there then.

A/an or the with meals

52. Laura is talking about the food she and Trevor had on holiday. Put in the words and use a/an or the if you need to.

(1) _____ (meals) we had weren't very good. We had (2) _____ (breakfast) in the hotel, and that wasn't too bad. We usually went out for (3) _____ (lunch) because (4) _____ (lunch) they served in the hotel was always the same. And (5) _____ (dinner) we had at the hotel on our first evening was pretty awful, so we tried a few restaurants. On our last evening we had (6) _____ (marvellous meal) in a Chinese restaurant. I wish we'd discovered the place a bit sooner.
