THE RISE OF

Charlie McDonnell

They started out making videos with a webcam in their bedrooms, and then turned vlogging (video blogging) into a full-time job. You probably haven't come across these online vloggers yet, but they have millions of viewers and make plenty of money through advertising. More than 1,000 people around the world now earn more than $100,000 a year from their vlogs. These Internet stars have their own YouTube channels. One billion people visit YouTube each month, and over 100 hours of video are uploaded to the site every minute. For young people, watching YouTube online is more attractive than watching TV because it is available wherever and whenever they want to watch it: on a smartphone, a laptop or a tablet.

Charlie McDonnell was the first British online superstar – he got into vlogging in 2007 when he was a shy 16-year-old schoolboy, and since then his videos have been viewed more than 250 million times. His viewers recognise him in the street and when he attends vlogging events, thousands of fans come so that they can see 'the real him'. His vlogs have been so successful that when he was 18, instead of going to university, he decided to make a living from his vlogs. He became a full-time vlogger and now earns more than his parents. His vlogs cover all sorts of topics including 'How to make tea' and 'How to speak English.'

THE VLOGGERS

Alex Day

McDonnell's friend and housemate is 25-year-old vlogger and talented singer-songwriter Alex Day. He created his YouTube channel 'nerimon' for fun. He uploads songs and music videos and his single, Forever Yours, reached No 4 in the UK charts.

Without having a recording contract with a major music label, his first two royalty cheques came to more than £100,000. His success is because of his musical talent alone. He did not have the marketing department of a big company behind him, but simply used social networking to publicise his music.

Making good videos is not as easy as it looks. Successful vloggers like Charlie McDonnell and Alex Day are bright and creative. They genuinely enjoy what they do, and they are just a little bit funnier and cooler than their audience. They have to work hard to live up to the expectations of their fans: most of them post new vlogs several times a week. Vloggers interact with their audience: they ask them questions and they get immediate feedback. The vlogger has to keep up with all this feedback so that he or she knows what viewers like most. If the viewers like the vloggers and their vlogs, they are more likely to share their videos – the more shares the vloggers get, the more money they will make from advertising. It's easy to make a vlog, but the successful ones are successful because they come up with good stuff ... very good stuff.

5 Read about another vlogger, Lex Croucher and answer the questions in your own words.

- 1 Why did she start vlogging?
- 2 What does she vlog about?
- 3 Why are her vlogs successful?

vlogging because she was bored. When she started out, her vlogs were autobiographical. But then they became serious discussions of issues. For example, her university course did not ³match her expectations, so she vlogged about it.

It's hard to imagine how she ⁴continues to do her studies as she not only vlogs, but you can also ⁵find her on Twitter, Tumblr and Facebook. But she manages to ⁶think of amusing and interesting vlogs. Her success is based on her talent, but also her choice of topics that other teenagers can relate to.
