I bet you have never been to Odessa

Did you know that almost 200,000 people live in Odessa? Can you believe that the city is only 135 miles from the beach? You may be surprised to learn that you need to drive for 7 hours to get to the beach from the centre of Odessa.

These are all true facts. But the Odessa I am talking about is in Texas, USA. So how did it happen that there are two cities with the same name? People believe that Odessa got its name after a city in Ukraine, because the local short-grass prairie looks a lot like Ukraine's steppe. So are these two cities alike? Well, I live in Odesa (Ukraine) and I have been to Odessa in the USA. Before my trip I thought that the weather is sunny and dry there in the summer. It was sunny most of the time, but on the only day I went shopping it rained for 4 hours. I am not very lucky. After I bought some souvenirs I went to visit a friend. We watched an ice hockey match together. I think this is the most popular sport there, but at home I only watch football. And another thing, the food in Ukrainian Odesa is certainly different.

For history lovers there are a few museums like the Presidential Museum or the Art Museum. But what I liked most was the Meteor Crater in the southwest of the city. It was an interesting trip, the only problem was explaining to my friends that the city I had visited was actually on a different continent.
