Who Are the Best Drivers?

A recent study shows that older drivers are usually safer than younger ones because they have more experience and tend to be more careful. In contrast, young men have the highest accident rates, mainly because they drive too fast and take more risks. Speeding and reckless driving are common problems among young male drivers.

Interestingly, research suggests that passengers can influence driving behavior. When young men drive with their friends, they often become more reckless as they try to impress them or take unnecessary risks. However, when their girlfriends or wives are in the car, they tend to drive more carefully to ensure safety.

This study highlights the fact that passengers can affect driving behavior, making drivers either more responsible or more dangerous, depending on the situation. Understanding these influences can help improve road safety and reduce accidents.

Robert is a taxi driver in London. He works six days a week and can start and finish his work at any time he prefers, as long as he completes the required hours. Since London is a very busy city, he often works overtime on Saturdays to earn extra money. Driving a taxi in the city is both difficult and dangerous. Traffic is often heavy due to construction sites and accidents. When it rains or snows, the roads become slippery and hard to drive on. Sometimes, Robert has to deal with drunk passengers who refuse to pay. However, most of his passengers are friendly and often tip him well. Robert enjoys his job because it gives him flexibility and daily interaction with people. But lately, he has been suffering from back pain, which makes driving uncomfortable. He has started to wonder if he is getting too old for the job he once loved so much.

- fast and comfortable
- has autopilot / runs on electricity
- avoid traffic jams
- carry many passengers
- a great way to travel in the future

OUTLINE

Introduction: I think people will like travelling by + [means of transport] in the future because...

Body:

- First: green → runs on electricity.
- Second: safe and comfortable → has modern features like autopilot.
- Third: convenient → carries many passengers → avoid traffic jams.

Conclusion: Though it may be expensive, its benefits make it a top choice for the future.

Writing sample:

I think people will like travelling by skyTrans in the future because it has many advantages.

First, it is green because it runs on electricity.

Second, it is safe and comfortable because it is modern with an autopilot function and has its own tracks.

Third, it can carry a lot of passengers, so road users can avoid traffic jams. Though some people might think it is expensive, these advantages will make it the means of transport in the future.
