The use of computers has meant that students can study language programmes at their own speed and for how long they want and no need (1) _____ the teachers having a favorite or doing yet another boring lesson. What's more, in the virtual classrooms of the future, the student will put on their headset (2) _____ be transported into an imaginary school, choose their class, take the books they need off the shelf and (3) _____ conversations with other computerized students.

They might instead choose to pay a visit to the supermarket or the train station, the bank or the restaurant. At the hit of a button, they would be transported to such realistic settings (4) _____ practice their English, maybe getting a hand from a virtual English companion. All this, perhaps, at the computer, from the comfort of their home: no (5) _____ to catch the bus to college, or a plane to England. Exciting? Certainly, it's an interesting (6) _____ to traditional classroom lessons. But would it ever replace the classroom?
