PASSAGE 65 đến PASSAGE 75

Tra ID Đề [5998] - Tra ID Video [5999]

PASSAGE 65

Education in Vietnam is very important for children. The Vietnamese government believes that education helps people get better jobs and improve their lives. There are four main levels of education: primary, secondary, high school and higher education.

Primary education lasts for five years, and all children must go to school during this time. In primary school, students learn basic subjects like math, Vietnamese language, and science. After primary school, students go to secondary school for four years. In secondary school, they study more subjects and can choose some electives based on their interests.

Many schools in cities have good facilities and qualified teachers. However, some children in rural areas have problems. They may not have enough schools, teachers, or learning materials. The government is trying to help by building more schools and training more teachers in these areas.

Education in Vietnam is getting better, but there is still work to do. By improving education, the country hopes to help children learn and grow, so they can have a bright future.

Question 1: How long does primary education last in Vietnam?

A. Three years B. Five years C. Seven years D. Ten years

Question 2: What problems do children in rural areas face regarding education?

A. Too many teachers B. Not enough schools and materials

C. Too much homework D. No need for school

Question 3: The word "qualified" is closest in meaning to _____.

A. experienced B. untrained C. average D. young

Question 4: What does the writer imply in the underlined sentence?

A. The country believes that education alone will solve all problems.

B. Improving education is important for the development of children and the nation.

C. Children do not need to study hard to have a bright future.

D. Only children in cities will benefit from education improvements.

Question 5: What can be inferred from the passage about education in rural areas of Vietnam?

A. Children in rural areas have the same educational opportunities as those in cities.

B. The government is taking steps to improve education in rural areas.

C. All schools in Vietnam have excellent facilities.

D. There are no schools in rural areas of Vietnam

LIVEWORKSHEETS